

The University for Peace online course on Contemporary Leadership, Cultures and Diversity

Ciudad Colon, Costa Rica. 3 March 2010. The University for Peace will launch its first online course on Contemporary Leadership, Cultures and Diversity on 12 April 2010.

This Course could be taken as 3-credit or non-credit. This 3-credit course is divided into two related parts during 15 weeks. In the first half, the course-taker will understand what culture and diversity mean, culture's relationship to peacebuilding and some of the debates surrounding cultural relativism. During the second half the course-taker will begin by examining contemporary leadership approaches and reviewing her or his own culture, developing skills for understanding and effectively working with other cultures. Various practical skills will be developed, including leadership with diversity and utilizing cultural resources for peacebuilding.

To take online courses at UPEACE you must have access to a computer with an Internet connection and an email account. A broadband Internet connection is preferred.
