M.A. Programme in Media and Peace

Is it for you?

Are you interested in knowledge of what role media plays in peacebuilding and conflict transformation?

Do you want to become a peace and conflict practitioner who has useful knowledge in media best practices that can help transform conflicts and build peace?

Do you want to spend a year studying in an academically-challenging environment, at a global university with students and faculty members drawn from every corner of the world?

What will you learn?

The Master’s degree in Media and Peace will train you to be an insightful researcher, an effective policymaker and a reflexive communicator, and help you make a positive impact in the global humanitarian field. Through this programme, you will gain:

- Knowledge of how contemporary media functions and what role it can play in peacebuilding and conflict transformation
- How to critically analyze traditional and digital media from a peacebuilding perspective
- How to create social impact for peacebuilding and humanitarian purposes through media interventions

M.A. in Media and Peace: University-wide Courses

You will receive, along with your peers from other programmes, courses on Peace and Conflict theories and practices, the UN system, the relationship of identity politics and peacebuilding, and research methods. The students of this M.A. programme will also receive practical training on working in conflict areas. For more information about these courses, follow this link to consult the Detailed Academic Calendar (in table format): https://bit.ly/2WLHg9U.

M.A. in Media and Peace: Programme-specific Courses

In addition to the university-wide courses, students in this programme will take 7 programme-specific courses. Previous courses include:

- Tools for Conflict Transformation
- Identity Politics, Inclusion and Peacebuilding
- Introduction to Media and Peace
- Global Structures and Cultures, Media and Conflict
- Censorship, International Law and Media
- Culture Wars, Peacebuilding and Media Representations
- Conflict, Media Technoculture and Peace
- Freedom of Expression in the Digital Age
- Gender and Media
- Introduction to Humanitarian Work

- Thesis/Capstone/Internship: In the final months of the M.A. programme, you will produce a research-based thesis or a capstone project. You will also have the option to choose an internship at a relevant organization to complete your M.A. programme requirements.
Where will you be studying?

The M.A. in Media and Peace is offered by the internationally-recognized Department of Peace and Conflict Studies of the University for Peace. As a leading center of peace and conflict research and education, the department offers various other MA programs on International Peace Studies, Gender and Peacebuilding and Peace Education. It caters to a diverse, global body of students. Instruction is provided by a group of leading scholars and expert practitioners in the field.

The University for Peace - established by the UN General Assembly in 1980 - has been training leaders for peace for the past four decades. It is the world’s leading educational institution in the field of peace and conflict resolution in its pursuit of the mandate given to it by the General Assembly, namely “to provide humanity with an international institution of higher education for peace and with the aim of promoting among all human beings the spirit of understanding, tolerance and peaceful coexistence, to stimulate cooperation among peoples and to help lessen obstacles and threats to world peace and progress, in keeping with the noble aspirations proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations”.

How to Apply?

1. Go to www.upeace.org and find the programme of your choice by visiting the Programmes section. We recommend you read the “IS IT FOR YOU” cards for each programme, as they are designed to help you find the programme best suited to your professional profile.

2. Click on Requirements in the top menu bar within the programme of your choice to learn about the required documentation you’ll need to have on hand when filling out your application form.

3. Read the instructions and click on Apply Now to begin the application process.

4. Please take note of your application code before you begin filling out the form. The online application will automatically save your progress as you advance through the screens, but you will need this code to return to an unfinished application.
