Commission for Peace

Dynamic Entrepreneur Ms. Mubarakka Lokhandwala Ghadiyali has successfully proven her track record in several industries such as travel, real estate, and the medical tourism sectors.

Ms. Mubarakka is a Founding Member of the University for Peace's Commission for Peace, as well as an Ambassador of the University for Peace globally. She has also been appointed as a Global Ambassador to the Delphic Games, a prestigious organization which ran parallel to the Olympic Games for 2500 years.

She has been awarded the LCGI Award from City and Guilds (UK). She is the first and youngest Asian in the world to have been conferred this award. She is the Chief Promoter and on the board of directors of One World Business Group, which deals in activities such as blockchains, robotics, and artificial intelligence.

Ms Mubarakka hails from a multi-billion dollar family office with operations in Asia, Europe, and the Middle East. She has been the Chair of Trustees of Blue Sky Villages UK, also based in India, with operations in Africa and the Middle East, which aims at improving the socio-economic conditions of people below the poverty line by improving the standards of living and the environment in general. It has adopted several villages across the world in order to provide a market for locally-produced handicraft products on an international level.

She has been an active international member of the Lions Club, a 25-year-old organization in India that conducts projects in education, women and child development, and women empowerment on the district and state levels. She runs an online portal which helps provide investments to women in rural areas to support their home-based cottage and small-scale industries in the form of investments. She is also a pilot and an international lawyer.

Ms. Mubarakka is the author of the series "Hello Woman," which has been appreciated by Madam Cherie Blair (UK) and many important celebrities across the world. She also is the Chief Trustee of the Meri Saheli India Foundation, which focuses on women empowerment.
